Summary

The study Was conducted measure the program implementation of community-oriented policing in Dumingag and its effectiveness in crime reduction Academic Year 2018-2019. It employed the descriptive-survey method wit the questionnaire-checklist as the main instrument used In gathering the needed data and Information. Weighted Average Mean and ANOVA were the statistical techniques used to interpret the data. The participants were PNP, Civilians and Barangay officials of Dumingag, Zamboanga del Sur.

The results revealed that majority of the PNP were 31 40 years old, more were males, mostly married and all were college graduates. Meanwhile, many of the civilians were 20 years old and below and 31-40 years old, with equal number of male and female, and majority were married and high school graduates. On the other hand, many of the Barangay Officials were 51 years old and above, majority were males, mostly married and many were elementary graduates.

Both PNP and Barangay officials perceived that the extent of implementation of community-oriented policing in Dumingag was "Implemented Without Lapses". However, civilians maintained that it was "Implemented with Minimal Lapses".

The profile of crime rates in Dumingag for the last 5 years indicated that the majority of the crimes committed In Dumingag have decreased as the programs implemented.

There was no significant difference on the perceived extent of implementation among the three groups Of participants,

Further, the study recommends that the PNP Chief proposes much effective police community related activities to lessen the occurrence of crimes; that Barangay official continuously support the activities of the PNP in order to expand the said program for the awareness of the people in the community: that the civilians be made fully aware of the activities and programs made by the PNP to ensure better partnership in crime prevention and control and also to maintain good rapport with each other; and that a similar study be conducted with increased number of variables.
