Summary

This study was conducted to determine the effects of gambling in the economic conditions of the residents of Zamboanga del Norte in the year 2018-2019.

The study employed qualitative research using interview and focus group discussion for the content and analysis to ascertain the purpose of this investigation. This was conducted in the 5 selected barangays of Siayan, Zamboanga del Norte with 50 respondents from the selected barangay.

The study affirmed that the common gambling games played in the community are bingo, tong-its, and cockfighting that gives negative effects to the family and it is the cause of partner's quarrel, changes in behavior, addiction to gambling, lack of money, and no time for the family. Gambling does not truly help in improving the economic condition of the residents of Siayan, Zamboanga del Norte.

The study recommends that the Local Government Unit of Siayan must have stricter implementation of the Anti-illegal gambling law, municipal ordinances pertaining to gambling and create promulgates an ordinance that promotes stiffer penalty against gambling that barangay officials facilitate their people not to engage in any gambling activity; and that residents of Siayan to follow and support the ordinance implemented by the LGU.
